GEC ARCHITECTURE: A NAME WORTH MENTIONING

InHouse is proud to announce the selection of GEC Architecture as the project architect for the redesign of their Glenora site. The team at GEC brings a wealth of expertise in the planning, design and construction of mixed-use residential projects. Their practice includes the integration of multiple disciplines and engagement in a rigorous design process that results in the enrichment of a user's experience in the built environment. GEC's past work and excellent technical knowledge make them our top choice to take a partially complete structure and transform it into a modern, efficient building.

Their team includes David Edmunds, Peter Osborne and Adrian Benoit, who have impressed us greatly with their quick ability to propose efficient solutions to design problems. "We look to do more with less, and draw inspiration from the context in which our projects reside," say the principals.

InHouse is excited to work with GEC in re-envisioning the Glenora site through a collaborative and creative process. Visit their website to learn more about their philosophy and work: www.gecarchitecture.com.
